

honest lawyer of Massachusetts. So says George Fred Williams of Boston now, and Junius T. Auerbach, and likewise Joseph Bedard and George E. Roewer of Lawrence.

They held him anyway, without bail. The courts refused a writ of habeas corpus.

City after city joined the strike, and mill after mill was forced to raise wages. When things quieted down the grand jury brought in a true bill.

Then they kept right on holding him. He probably won't be tried till next fall.

They say in Boston that Joe Ettor is a very undesirable citizen, and the country's better off with him in jail. But they don't like to discuss the merits of the case against him.

To the textile workers Joe's a martyr.

ALCOHOL AS BEAUTY'S ENEMY—BY BILLIE BURKE

The first word—Liquor not only ruins beauty, but it kills respect.

* * *

The other evening in one of the splendid restaurants in New York I saw a number of young girls, none over 18 or 20, having what they thought was a glorious time. There were six girls and six men somewhat older than themselves, and the girls had been drinking wine until their faces were flushed, their voices loud and strident and their manners most noticeable. How I wanted to whisper to these thoughtless maids that if any one of them wished to stand well with any one of the men present she had better come immediately.

No man on earth wants to see the woman for whom he cares even slightly under the influence of drink, and the man who will encourage a girl to take a drink of liquor does not care what happens to her. She is nothing to him.

Nothing will steal away your good looks as will intoxicating liquor. I have a friend who is over fifty and who, when asked the other day how she retained not only her beauty but her youthful contours and expression, answered: "In the first place I never touch spirituous liquor." Not one young woman in the crowd about her could vie with her in appearance and not one young woman in the crowd who did not think it necessary to occasionally at least sip a glass of wine. It was an object lesson that I am sure they will remember.

Just one last word—Liquor may exhilarate for the moment, but it leaves devastation in its wake.

Taffeta mantles, either in black or carried out in strict harmony with the dress, have come into vogue. For the most part they are unlined and quite straight.
